5. Newly found Webb, Jr. (6,360,314) has been used in combination with Amerson et al. (5,475,823) in formulating the rejection. Armeson et al. was cited in a previous Office action, therefore, copy of this patent is not included in this action.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

- (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 6. Claims 2,12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Amerson et al. (5,475,823) in view of Webb, Jr. et al. (6,360,314).
- 7. As to claims 2,12, Amerson disclosed a system for detecting an instruction [load] that loads data from a first memory location [A1] (see the loading of the memory address in col.1, lines 30-41, see col.4, lines 30-37, col.5, lines 16-19) that was previously stored to (e.g. see col.8, lines 36-41). Amerson did not specifically show the feature of "without computing the external memory address of the first location " as claimed. Instead, it only shows both the load and store referenced the same memory location. However, Webb, Jr. disclosed a system for provide a load data from a recent store instead of having to retrieve the data from a memory upon a match of a comparison result between a load and store address information (e.g. see col.1, lines 60-65, col.2, lines 7-15, col.4, lines 43-48col.6, lines 10-17, col.7, lines 20-26). From the above, it is clear that the load data was provided based on the address comparison, not a computation of address. In other words, the load data was provided without computing the external memory address because it was provided from the recent store. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use Webb, Jr. in Amerson for including the feature of without computing the load address as claimed because the use of Webb, Jr. could increase the control ability of Amerson's instruction detector to accept a specific operand data previously stored in memory at a given request, thereby eliminating the address calculating cycle of the memory data, and it could be done by configuring the bypass circuit of Webb, Jr. into Amerson upon the compare of the load and store addresses to reduce the length of the address cycle, and in doing so, provided a motivation.

- 8. Claims 3-11, 13-19 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable, for specifically reciting the additional second memory location for store and load data, if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
- 9. Claims 20-21 are allowable over the art of record for specifically reciting the detailed functional operations of the syntax determination and the respective first and second memory locations.
